Paris, Washington DC, 24.12.2015, 03:28 Time

USPA NEWS - Alstom, leader of a consortium including Thales, Sofratesa, CIM and TSO(1), has been awarded a contract by Metro de Panama SA to supply 70 additional metro cars for Line 1 of Panama Metro on December 22. Delivery of the new cars will begin in early 2017.

Alstom, leader of a consortium including Thales, Sofratesa, CIM and TSO(1), has been awarded a contract by Metro de Panama SA to supply 70 additional metro cars for Line 1 of Panama Metro on December 22. Alstom will also update the existing signalling solution and the power supply and increase the size of the depot. Alstom share in the contract is worth €130 million. Delivery of the new cars will begin in early 2017.

The Metropolis for Panama includes wide doors, large gangways and a low floor for optimum passenger flows. The metro trainset features large seats and dynamic information displays to enhance passenger experience. Alstom will equip the six new trainsets with Urbalis 400 - Alstom's communications-based train control (CBTC) solution "" as well as updating the solution on the ground as the trainsets are longer. Furthermore, the depot will be extended to accommodate the bigger fleet.

The new Metropolis cars will be designed and manufactured at Alstom´s Santa Perpetua plant (near Barcelona) in Spain where the 20 original trains were built.-----

(1) Thales and Sofratesa are in charge of ATS, telecom and auxiliary systems; TSO/CIM are in charge of the track, catenary and depot equipment. The contract value for the consortium is €145 million. (2) Alstom was awarded the contract in 2010 to supply 20 Metropolis as well as Urbalis CBTC and electrification
